

IMPORTANT NOTICE - PLEASE READ ABOUT NCECA CONFERENCE HOTELS

2024 Conference Accommodations as of February 19, 2024

NCECA's selection of conference hotels is influenced by price point, value, proximity to the convention center, and the amenities they can offer their guests. NCECA collaborates with convention centers and visitors' bureaus to establish room block agreements for conference attendees. Meeting room block benchmarks generates rebates to offset space rental costs, while underutilization results in financial penalties. Booking a room in a conference hotel saves time and reduces air pollution caused by commuting to the conference centers. NCECA has progressively increased the number of rooms blocked to accommodate attendees.

Making optimal projections has become complicated because soon after hotels are announced, some attendees may block more rooms than they need. These rooms are then removed from inventory, causing others to be turned away. When those who have blocked rooms wait to cancel just before arrival at the conference, hotels are no longer required to make these accommodations available to other conference guests at the favorable rates that NCECA negotiates in advance. For these reasons, NCECA kindly asks all attendees to be judicious and considerate as they reserve rooms. To learn more, visit www.nceca.net
